Estes Builders Takes America's Best Builder Honors.

Las Vegas NV – Builder Magazine and the National Association of Home Builders have recognized Estes Builders of Sequim, Washington with the prestigious “America’s Best Builder 2009” award. The announcement was made at the 65th Annual International Builders Show in Las Vegas, Nevada on January 19th.

Estes Builders received the highly competitive accolade after a comprehensive evaluation of homebuilders across the United States. After rigorous judging by a panel of top homebuilding executives, consultants and past winners, the award is given to builders that demonstrate excellence in nearly every aspect of homebuilding including design and construction, customer satisfaction and quality, community and industry service, and finance and business operations.

“Most builders excel in just one discipline, be it customer service, great design, construction expertise, or financial acumen,” said Denise Dersin, Editor in Chief of BUILDER magazine, the leading magazine of the home building industry. “But our America’s Best Builder winners manage to do it all. That is an amazing achievement, and even more so during these difficult times.”

“We believe our homeowners deserve the very best in design, construction quality and value.” said Kevin Estes, President of Estes Builders. “We know many of our customers select us because of our price and tremendous value. The awards and our top tier customer satisfaction rate are a result of our focus on creating the best possible customer experience before, during and after construction. The America’s Best Builder award is the culmination of our teams’ efforts which started with the first home we built in 1989. Since then, we have been privileged to have over 350 families choose Estes Builders for their home.”

This is not the first time Estes Builders has received national recognition as one of the very best homebuilders in North America. They have been twice awarded the prestigious National Housing Quality Award and were named a winner of a National Customer Satisfaction Award – Best in Class.

America’s Best Builder and the National Housing Quality (NHQ) award are amongst the two most prestigious honors in the homebuilding industry. Estes Builders is now one of only a handful of homebuilders across the country to have received both honors. The company has been featured for their excellence in several national publications including Builder Magazine, Custom Builder Magazine and Professional Builder Magazine.

After conducting an on-site judging review of Estes Builders, Dean Potter the Vice President of Quality Assurance for K. Hovnanian Homes had this to say “In short, if I were planning on starting a small town building company, I could do no better than model it after the culture and operational excellence that Estes Builders represents. Their focus on their customer’s needs and delivering what they promise are amongst the best in the industry.”

“We are very happy and extremely proud of the honor” said Kevin Estes. Every person on our staff believes we have a responsibility to carry the mantle of “America’s Best Builder”. This means listening carefully to our customers, paying attention to the details, and improving every day.”

Estes Builders is among fewer than 1% of builder-leaders nationwide to become a Quality Certified Homebuilder by the National Association of Homebuilders Research Center. They have been a North Peninsula Building Association Built Green member since its inception and are an Energy Star partner. The company builds custom homes throughout the Olympic Peninsula including Port Angeles, Sequim, Port Townsend and Port Ludlow. They also build luxury attached homes in Sequim. Their website address is www.estesbuilders.com or they can be reached at 360-683-8756.
